President's Anniversary . . .

Educational Growth of a Decade

By Henry Grattan Doyle

Dean of Columbian College and Professor of Romance Languages

THE COMING of President Marvin in 1927 brought to The George Washington University not only an effective and experienced financial executive and administrator, but an educational leader with progressive ideas and the academic background necessary to carry them out.

It may be of some interest to outline, from the point of view of a member of the instructional staff who has known the University for more than twenty years, the academic progress of the University during the past ten years. Let us first consider the internal growth of the University. Leaving out of consideration the increase in student enrollments, the most marked of all developments has been the administrative reorganization of the various educational units. Moving in the vanguard of a general trend in American university organization, the University has placed the work of the freshman and sophomore years, for all curricula except those in Engineering, in the Junior College, which provides a broad basis for further studies either in the liberal arts or in the professions.

Columbian College, while retaining its historically important name, has restricted its functions to the upper-division work of the junior and senior years, supplemented and brought to a focus by the first year of graduate study, Master's degree candidates having been assigned since the reorganization to Columbian College. This change also is in accord with a general trend in university administration.

A further change, and one which has attracted to the University the attention of university administrators generally, has been the development of the Graduate Council. Under the new plan of operation, an effort has been made to re-establish the historical relationship of master and apprentice.

The administrative reorganization and the establishment of the Junior College have placed the School of Government and the School of Education definitely upon an upper-division basis, with admission dependent upon graduation from the Junior College. Another improvement is the separate administration of special students and auditors under the direction of the Dean of the University Division.

Along with these fundamental changes in organization, a striking development of the University has been the steady rise in academic standards, demonstrated by the high standards of admission to all the units of the University, and correspondingly high requirements for graduation. The higher standard of admission of the Law School, which now requires a Bachelor's degree for admission, is an interesting parallel development in the professional schools.

In considering standards, we must also mention the steady improvement in instruction, brought about both by improved physical facilities in the way of classrooms, offices, laboratories and the like, and by a remarkable increase in the numbers of the faculty. Not only have a large number of promising young scholars been added to our staff, but the faculty have been encouraged by the maintenance throughout the depression of a salary scale which in the years between 1927 and 1932 had been steadily improved. During the past five years a commendable number of salary increases have been granted. The present salary standard compares most favorably with that of other institutions. Moreover, the University has established and maintained a generous policy in the matter of sabbatical leaves, thereby enabling many members of the staff to improve their professional backgrounds or to produce scholarly creative works. Largely because of these conditions, a fine spirit of coöperation and of consecration to the educational task of the University has characterized the faculty.

Externally considered, the educational growth of the University can best be measured by its present standing among the colleges and universities of the country, attested not only by the daily experience of graduates, students, and faculty, but by concrete achievements. The University has attained during the past ten years the highest accreditation, both for its liberal arts work and for its professional work. To regional accreditation by the Middle States Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools has been added similar accreditation by the Association of American Universities, giving our academic work the highest possible rating. Similar recognition for our professional work by the Association of American Law Schools and the American Medical Association has been maintained. The most recent evidence of the high quality of our work and its recognition by the academic world generally has been the establishment at the University of a chapter of Sigma Xi, the national honorary fraternity in science. Moreover, the Phi Beta Kappa members of the University faculty have been invited to submit an application for a chapter of Phi Beta Kappa.

Limitations of space prevent mention of many other achievements. It will be evident from what has been said, however, that the ten-year period just past has been marked by steady progress in the educational development of the University. On the solid foundations laid by the self-sacrificing efforts of trustees, faculty, students, and alumni of earlier generations there has been built a structure which commands general respect in the community and among our sister institutions, not only in our own country but abroad.

Academically and educationally, The George Washington University can stand comparison with the best of our American institutions. This work has been accomplished by the common efforts of a great many individuals; trustees, faculty, students, alumni, and friends of the University have all had a share, and all have contributed to the extent of their respective ability. It is good to remember, however, that this result has been attained under the inspiration of outstanding educational leadership. Without that leadership, these efforts, however unselfish, might have failed of their goal. While we rejoice in the achievements of the last ten years, in which all University groups have had a share, we should rejoice in special measure because during that period we have had the privilege of working shoulder to shoulder with President Marvin. With him as our leader we look forward confidently to an ever-brighter future.

Classroom and Campus

Marking a Decade

APPRECIATION of institutions and of men customarily is not given concerted public expression in the day-to-day course of events. For this reason it is important to pause, on occasion, for formal appraisal and commendation. Such expression imparts a lift, an impetus to further progress, which extends in its influence in a widening circle.

An occasion of this nature is planned for The George Washington University, and for the man who during the past ten years has been at its head. On Friday evening, April 30, at the Mayflower Hotel in Washington, trustees, faculty, alumni, students, and other friends of the University will join in honoring President Cloyd H. Marvin and in marking the University's progress during the decade 1927-1937.

There will be distinguished speakers and guests, music by the University Glee Club, and other features appropriate to the evening. Mr. Charles S. Baker, President of the General Alumni Association, will preside. Mr. Robert V. Fleming, President of the Riggs National Bank and member of the Board of Trustees of the University, will act as toastmaster.

Various aspects of the University's development will be outlined by members of the Board of Trustees, including Mrs. Joshua Evans, Jr., Mr. Charles C. Glover, Jr., Mr. Alfred H. Lawson, and Dr. Charles R. Mann.

Mr. Baker will speak for the alumni; Dean Henry Grattan Doyle, for the faculty; Miss May Paul Bradshaw, Principal of Roosevelt High School, for the public schools of Washington; and Ross Pope, President of the Student Council, for the student body.

Columbian Women have merged their spring dinner with the tenth anniversary celebration. A number of the alumni clubs will hold meetings in their cities simultaneously with the Washington dinner.

Phi Beta Kappa, Sigma Xi

Significant as recognitions of academic stature are two recent occurrences—installation of a George Washington chapter of the Society of the Sigma Xi, national honorary scientific fraternity; and the extending of an invitation by the Senate of Phi Beta Kappa to The George Washington University to apply for a charter.

The University was one of eight institutions invited by Phi Beta Kappa to apply. These eight were selected from a list of more than 200 institutions following the recommendation of a committee on qualifications. The committee conducted an extensive investigation, including personal visits and tours of inspection, and then made its recommendation on the basis of "excellence in the liberal arts and sciences, particularly in the quality of its product, its faculty, curriculum, library, equipment and financial condition."

Members of committee were President David A. Robertson, of Goucher College, chairman; Dean George H. Chase, of Harvard; Dr. Frank P. Graves, commissioner of education of the State of New York; President Theodore H. Jack, of Randolph-Macon College for Women; Dean Guy Stanton Ford, of the University of Minnesota; and Dean Charles H. Lipman, of the University of California.

The application for a George Washington University chapter of Phi Beta Kappa will be brought before the nineteenth triennial council meeting next September in Atlanta.

In establishing a chapter at The George Washington University, the Society of the Sigma Xi recognized the excellence of the University's facilities for science teaching and scientific research, and the records of achievement of members of its faculty, alumni, and graduate students.

Ceremonies, termed by the installing officer, Dean Edward Ellery, "the most impressive installation that I have known in our great society," were held at the winter convocation on February 22. Representatives of thirty-two Sigma Xi chapters in colleges throughout the country were present.

Coincident with the installation of the Sigma Xi chapter, the University made recognition of scientific achievement through bestowal of honorary degrees upon eight noted men of science. Those honored were:

Dr. Paul Bartsch, naturalist, Curator of the Division of Mollusks of the United States National Museum and Professor of Zoology in The George Washington University, Doctor of Science.

Dr. William Bowie, engineer and geodesist, Director of the Division of Geodesy of the United States Coast and Geodetic Survey, Doctor of Science.

sity, Doctor of Science.

Dr. William Alanson White, psychiatrist, Superintendent of St. Elizabeth's Hospital and Professor of Psychiatry in The George Washington University School of Medicine, Doctor of Laws.

New Library Plans

This issue of the Alumni Review displays on page 2 architect's drawings of plans conceived by President Marvin and executed under his direction for a proposed new library building for the University.

The building eventually would take its place between the Biological Science Building and the Social Science Hall and would complete the group on the G Street side of the University quadrangle, forming an impressive development in modern architectural style. Connected by archways with the two flanking units and rising to eight stories, the building with its vertical lines and set-backs is in the spirit of the modern age, both as to appearance and as to the functional character of its planning.

The plans have been drawn up looking toward the securing of funds for the replacement of Lisner Hall, which has served the University for so many years and which long since has been outgrown. When the building is erected it will provide unexcelled housing for the University library. At the twenty-fourth annual conference of Eastern College Librarians, held at Columbia University last fall, the Curator of the Rare Book Department of the Columbia University Library, Dr. Hellmut Lehmann-Haupt, made the statement concerning the plans that he had seen nothing more significant and practical in college library architecture in this country and abroad than the two sketches which were exhibited at the conference.

The building will be entered on the ground floor at a lower level than the main floors of the flanking units, the south entrance opening into a large lobby. The entire north side, on the first three floors, will be devoted to the reading room. A tier of stacks will rise to the level of the seventh floor. Opening off the eight stack floors will be study alcoves and seminar rooms. On the seventh floor of the building will be a large room which will serve as the Graduate Council guild hall and the meeting room for the Board of Trustees. The President's offices will be located on the top floor.

On the campus side of the building will be a large concrete platform which may be used for concerts, commencement exercises, and other out-of-doors events.

The building will be approximately ninety feet across the G Street front and will run back to a depth of seventy feet.

Preliminary plans for the interior of the building were drawn by Dr. C. C. Williamson, Director of University Libraries and Dean of the School of Library Service of Columbia University. When he drew the plans he stated that a building such as was planned by President Marvin offers great possibilities for economy of construction and economy of administration.

John Russell Mason, University Librarian, took the sketches with him to the conference to show Dean Williamson, who expressed himself as much impressed and suggested that the sketches be hung during the conference in Harkness Academic Theatre, on the first floor of the Columbia University Library where the meetings were held. They constituted the only exhibit at the conference and many of the two hundred college librarians in attendance expressed very favorable opinions of the sketches.

Site for Gymnasium

Three quarters of a city block, comprising fifty thousand square feet of land bounded by G, H, Twenty-second and Twenty-third Streets, has been acquired by the University as the site for future construction of an auditorium-gymnasium.

Purchase of the land was made possible by the bequest of the late Richard E. Pairo, LL.B. 88, which bequest also will provide part of the cost of erecting the building.

It is hoped that alumni and other friends of the University will come forward, when plans are completed, to provide the necessary additional funds.

It would be difficult to overestimate the benefits that would come to the University community from the possession of a hall where the entire student body might come together, where the crowds which turn out for basketball games and other sports events could be comfortably accommodated. Those who attended the Homecoming rally held at the Rialto Theatre on November 25 witnessed a compelling demonstration of the abundant student spirit that is present at George Washington and lacks only a rallying point.

Committees are now at work drawing up plans for the building, which probably will be called the Richard E. Pairo Hall of Physical Education. Full details of the project will be presented to the alumni in the near future.

"Strike Against War"

Under the lead of the American League Against War and Fascism, American Student Union, American Youth Congress, and other groups, a student "Strike Against War" again this year is being promoted in colleges and universities throughout the country.

Two years ago when this movement first appeared at George Washington, a demonstration took place in the Yard which, though in itself limited in extent, assumed considerable proportions by reason of the opposition it inspired.

Last year, to prevent recurrence of such an incident and at the same time to give students the opportunity to express themselves with regard to the cause of peace, the University cooperated with the student body in the holding of a Peace Convocation, at an earlier date than the "Strike Against War" and apart from any connection with that movement. The entire facilities of the University were made available for the occasion, faculty committees assisted in arranging the program, and classes were dismissed during the hours of the meetings which were addressed by prominent speakers chosen by the students.

It was felt that the Peace Convocation had been distinctly worth while and had made a valuable contribution in the field of student discussion. Apparently, however, it was not satisfactory to those behind the "Strike Against War" movement. Several weeks ago printed pamphlets, carrying only the names of the organizations fostering the "Strike Against War" were distributed on the campus, calling for George Washington University students to "join the nation-wide student demonstration" on April 22, insisting on a "strike rather than a convocation or a forum," and declaring that "George Washington must strike simultaneously with students in other colleges."

To make clear the position of The George Washington University with respect to such demonstrations, the President of the University then made a statement, printed in the Hatchet on March 23, in which he said:

Let me say at the outset that the University's position has nothing whatsoever to do with the feeling of the institution, or of individuals who compose the institution, for the cause of peace. All of us are for peace. But belligerent and inappropriate action is neither educational nor effective. It breeds opposition and counter-demonstration by those who resent the tactics though they may be sincerely enthusiastic for the cause. The resulting melee accomplishes nothing, except to intrude temporarily upon the dignity and true purposes of university life.

Such transitory disturbance might be condoned as idealistic in motive if mistaken in method, did it not carry with it the serious and far-reaching implication of attempted interference with the educational process by nationally-organized and non-university propaganda organizations.

The function of the university is to search out truth. If it is to fulfill its function the university must be free of the influence of all outside pressure groups, however high-minded the causes they espouse. Once it yields to outside pressure of any kind it is no longer an educational institution but a propaganda instrument, prey to shifting and conflicting fanaticisms. . . .

The George Washington University believes in and fosters full and free discussion by its students. Within the University there are discussion groups, sponsored by the student body and sanctioned by the University for the consideration by students of public questions. Furthermore, if at any time the student body wishes to come together to discuss a particular question, the University is glad to cooperate, as it did last year in the holding of a Peace Convocation.

The George Washington University, then, believes in free and democratic discussion. It affords ample opportunity for such discussion. But it holds that student expression must take place within the framework of orderly and reasoned University procedures, and free from the dictates of propaganda groups.

If any of our students wish to take part in the "Strike Against War" on April 22, they are, so far as the University is concerned, perfectly free as individuals to do so. But such activity must take place outside the limits of the University, and students, of course, will be subject to the usual consequences attendant upon absence from classes.

This applies with equal force to any students opposed to the tactics or the views of the persons sponsoring the "Strike Against War," who may seek to demonstrate against the demonstrators. No demonstration or counter-demonstration on University property will be countenanced.

High School Scholarships

Alumni will have an important part in selection of the recipients of the University's four-year high school scholarships, under new regulations which have just been adopted.

The number of these scholarships has been increased from eight to twenty. Henceforth, two four-year scholarships will be assigned to each of the seven Washington senior high schools, as well as the Bethesda-Chevy Chase High School, Washington-Lee High School in Clarendon, and George Washington High School in Alexandria. In each school one four-year scholarship will be awarded to a boy and one to a girl member of the graduating class, every year.

Committees on awards are now being set up in each high school, composed of the principal, the chairman of the college bureau or scholarship committee, the dean of the Junior College of the University, and an alumnus of the high school who is also an alumnus of the University.

It is felt that the new method of selection, combining the judgment of the high school, the University, and alumni, will bring to George Washington the highest type of scholarship students. Awards will be made on the basis of scholastic achievement, personality, and qualities of leadership and ability as evidenced in the candidates' high school activities.

Fellowships in Government

Seven fellowships providing for graduate study in The George Washington University School of Government, each of which carries a stipend of $1000 annually, have been made available by the Order of Knights Templar of the United States of America.

Two such fellowships were established last year under the program of the Knights Templar Educational Foundation, one by the Grand Commandery of Tennessee in memory of Perry G. Widener, Past Grand Master, for award to a graduate of a Tennessee university; and one by the Grand Encampment in honor of Joseph Kyle Orr, Past Grand Master of the Grand Commandery of Georgia and a founder of the Educational Foundation. Creation of the five additional fellowships was determined upon in December.

These fellowships are allotted according to districts and are awarded on the basis of competitive examination of the candidates. Awards are in the hands of the Educational Foundation Committee of the Grand Encampment of Knights Templar, the chairman of which is Stuart H. Walker, 330 West Forty-second Street, New York City.

Passing of a Leader

Expressions of universal sorrow and esteem, coming from medical scientists throughout the country and from laymen in every walk of life, followed upon the death, March 7, of Dr. William Alanson White, for thirty-four years Superintendent of St. Elizabeth's Hospital, and since 1904 Professor of Psychiatry in The George Washington University School of Medicine.

Dr. Walter A. Bloedorn, Professor of Medicine and Acting Dean of the School of Medicine, declared: "His loss has left a vacancy that will be difficult if not impossible to fill. Dr. White was the outstanding medical educator in the country in his field. A man of wide vision and sound judgment, he was an inspiration to students and to his associates on the faculty."

Throughout the many tributes to Dr. White which appeared in the press, such phrases as these recur: "World-famed psychiatrist . . . the Louis Pasteur of psychiatry . . . stimulator and organizer of original investigations, brilliant theorist, noted teacher . . . famed as an educator of scores of the country's leading psychiatrists . . . author of some of the most widely used medical texts and of one of the definitive books on the subject of psychiatry . . . organizer of the model mental hospital of the world . . . diagnosis and treatment, research and training, education and prevention—all felt the impact of his richly productive life and work . . . because of his presence here Washington became a mecca for students of psychiatry the world over . . . a rare combination of scientist and humanitarian, a progressive and social-minded hospital administrator . . . something far rarer and greater than administrator, educator, or physician, he was a great poet and philosopher . . . among his gifts were devotion, good humor, liberality of judgment and an undiscouraged optimism . . . his mind was naturally equitable, his spirit just and merciful . . . surpassed by none of his contemporaries and equalled by few . . ."

Dr. White's last public address was that given at the winter convocation of the University on February 22. The address, widely commended for its breadth of thought and forward outlook, has been published by the American Council on Education in the April issue of the Educational Record, under the title, "Education in the Present World Crisis."

Briefer Mention

¶Sixty-eight per cent of the eighty-seven George Washington University law graduates who took the recent District Bar examination passed. Of the total of 570 candidates who took the examination only forty per cent were successful, making the average of George Washington graduates thirty-eight per cent higher than the general average.

¶Forty-seven members of the resident faculty will teach in the summer sessions of the University.

¶The fiftieth anniversary of the founding of the Interstate Commerce Commission was commemorated by The George Washington Law Review with a special issue in March. The commemorative issue was more than twice the size of regular numbers of the Law Review and constituted a symposium on the work of the Commission. Three hundred copies of a cloth bound edition were subscribed for.

¶Dr. Charles C. Swisher, Professor Emeritus of History, was honored on his ninetyeth birthday, December 6, by creation of the Charles Clinton Swisher Prize in Medieval History. Dr. Swisher attended the meeting of the Swisher History Club at which announcement of the award was made, and replied to tributes spoken by officers of the club.

¶Women students from twenty-nine states and four foreign countries have been residents of the Hattie M. Strong Hall for Women during the year. The facilities of the dormitory will be open to students of the summer sessions. Reservations for the academic year 1937-38 are now being received.

¶The student club, located in the Biological Science Building, has become one of the most popular spots on campus, filling a long-felt need. Sales totaling 54,000 items were made during the month of January. The club is run on a coöperative basis, a percentage of the receipts being returned to the students on the basis of their individual purchases at the end of each school year.

¶The Glee Club will give its annual spring concert at the Willard Hotel on May 13. The club made its second annual appearance in concert with the National Symphony Orchestra in December.

¶Professor Lowell J. Ragatz has been appointed to the editorial board of the Journal of Modern History, leading professional publication in the field. Professor Ragatz will teach this year in the summer sessions of Northwestern University.

¶Professor Douglas Bement will be a member of the summer faculty of Breadloaf, graduate school of English, in Vermont. The school is under the direction of Middlebury College and is one of the leading schools of creative writing in the country. Professor Bement's book, Weaving the Short Story, is considered one of the best in its field.

¶George Howland Cox, Director of the Inter-American Center, will head the Latin-American division of the Institute of Public Affairs of the University of Virginia, meeting at Charlottesville July 5-19.

¶Professor Donald S. Watson will teach this summer at the University of British Columbia.

Dean William C. VanVleck, of the Law School; E. Hilton Jackson, President of the Law Alumni Association; and Sir Willmott Lewis, Washington correspondent of the London Times, at the dinner celebrating Dean VanVleck's twenty-five years of service with the University.

National Alumni Council

With election of members of the National Alumni Council completed, alumni have set up for the first time a national body, organized on a geographical basis, for the furtherance of the alumni program.

The personnel of the Council, as determined by the election results, is set forth on the inside front cover of this issue of the ALUMNI REVIEW.

The National Alumni Council not only will be responsible for the alumni program in its broad outlines, but through its members, resident in each of the eighteen geographical districts, will aid in organizing and stimulating the activity of individual alumni groups in cities throughout the country. In the interim of meetings held at the University, the business of the Council will be conducted through visits from the Alumni Secretary and other University officers, and through correspondence with the Alumni Office.

Members of the Council are named for three-year terms. Terms have been arranged to expire at staggered intervals so that the Council at no time will be composed entirely of new members.

In each of the districts there is a chairman, and one representative for every thousand of alumni population. On this basis, the existing distribution of alumni gives to each district, with the exception of District 1, a chairman and one representative. District 1, composed of Washington, D.C., and vicinity, has a chairman and six representatives by virtue of its alumni population.

Alumni Trustees

Ballots in the 1937 election of Alumni Trustees, recently issued, carry names of the following nominees:

Bennett Champ Clark, LL.B. 14, United States Senator from Missouri; Alumni Trustee since 1934.

Walter B. Clarkson, LL.B. 98, Vice President, Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Companies, Washington, D.C.

Allen W. Dulles, LL.B. 26, lawyer, Sullivan and Cromwell, New York City; member, Foreign Service of the United States, 1916-1926; Chief, Division of Near Eastern Affairs, Department of State, 1922-1926.

David A. Molitor, B.S. in C.E. 08, C.E. 08, D.Eng. 32, structural engineer, Procurement Division, United States Treasury Department; designing engineer on the Panama Canal, works connected with Sault Ste. Marie Falls Canal and channels through the Great Lakes, and other important engineering projects.

Alton B. Sharp, LL.B. 23, President, Eastern Steamship Lines, Incorporated, Boston.

Alfred A. Wheat, LL.B. 91, Chief Justice, District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia; past president, The George Washington Law Association; Alumni Trustee since 1931.

Alumni Secretary

Lester A. Smith, of the class of 1932, took office on February 1 as Alumni Secretary of the University.

Mr. Smith has been active in alumni affairs for some time past. He was one of the organizers of the Library Science Alumni Association, of which he served as president from 1934 to 1937, and has served for the past two years on the executive committee of the General Alumni Association. Prior to his appointment he was on the staff of the Army Medical Library. He holds the degrees of A.B. and A.M. in Library Science from the University.

With the appointment of Mr. Smith, Professor Norman Bruce Ames, who served last year as assistant to the President of the University in connection with the development of the alumni program, returned to his teaching post.

In discussing his new work, the Alumni Secretary said:

"The alumni program of The George Washington University is a response to the ideals and activity of the alumni and the administration, both motivated by a high ambition for the University. The office of alumni secretary is a means through which both may join their efforts for the realization of that ambition.

"The alumni whose acquaintance I have made in the last three months have given me a new and greater pride in their and my alma mater. In future months I hope to meet and confer with other alumni throughout the country and to hear from them their hopes for the future of The George Washington University.

"I have a sense of deep responsibility to the administration which has brought the University to its present high position and to those devoted alumni who have worked unselfishly to develop our alumni organizations."

Alumni Directory

Names of some seventeen thousand George Washington graduates will appear in the alumni directory which the University is preparing to publish.

There will be alphabetical, geographical, and class listings. Information on each graduate will include the name, degrees from The George Washington University and years, degrees from other universities and years, occupation, and address.

The alumni directory will be a 400-page volume, forming a living record of great value to the alumni and to the University.

General Alumni Association

Three major events in Washington, D.C., are being arranged by the General Alumni Association: the dinner marking the decade 1927-1937 and honoring President Marvin, the annual meeting and the reception and dance for the June graduates, and the 1937 Homecoming celebration.

The anniversary dinner is described on page 5. The response to its announcement from alumni and friends of the University has been such as to insure the evening's place in the history of the University.

Each year the June graduates are guests at a reception and dance held in their honor by the General Alumni Association. The annual meeting of the Association, followed by the reception and dance, will be held Saturday, June 5, at the Hotel Mayflower.

The success of last year's Homecoming has spurred the committee to early activity in preparation for next fall. We are fortunate in again having Mr. Hugh H. Clegg as Homecoming chairman. The 1937 celebration will center about the game with North Dakota State College, to be played Saturday afternoon, November 13. Plans for the ball and other Homecoming events already are well advanced. Alumni should reserve the week-end of November 13 for what promises to be the greatest Homecoming yet celebrated.

The University and the alumni organizations are most anxious to keep in touch with all alumni. Please inform the Alumni Office of changes in address.

CHARLES S. BAKER,
President

Law Association

The testimonial dinner to Dean William C. VanVleck, in celebration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of his association with the Law School, was one of the largest and most enthusiastic gatherings of law alumni ever held. Sponsored by the executive committee of the Law Association in coöperation with a committee of alumni chaired by Philip F. Herrick of the Law Class of 1933, the dinner took place at the Mayflower Hotel on March 20, and was attended by nearly 500 alumni, faculty, and students.

LESTER A. SMITH, Alumni Secretary

The toastmaster, your association president, read letters of felicitation to Dean VanVleck from Trustees Arthur Peter and Gilbert Grosvenor. Trustee Harry C. Davis, Secretary of the Board, conveyed the congratulations of the Board. Provost William C. Ruediger spoke as the official representative of President Marvin and the University. James R. Kirkland gave greetings on behalf of the faculty, and Colonel Walter C. Clephane, Professor Emeritus of Law, presented to Dean VanVleck a handsome gold watch, the gift of the faculty and alumni. The guest speaker was Sir Willmott Lewis, Washington correspondent of the London Times.

Other activities of the Law Association during the current year include the work of its sub-committee on Law School objectives. On behalf of the executive committee, Paul F. Hannah, chairman of the sub-committee, is preparing, at the request of President Marvin, a brief, the purpose of which is to define the objectives of the Law School and disclose ways in which the Law alumni may assist the University in achieving the objectives outlined.

C. Oscar Berry, secretary-treasurer, reports that an increasing number of life memberships are being received. Life membership dues are $10 and include an engraved certificate of membership.

The annual meeting and election of officers will be held at the Mayflower Hotel on June 5, immediately preceding the meeting of the General Alumni Association.

E. HILTON JACKSON,
President

Medical Society

Two events stand out in prominence this year. The first of these was the annual banquet of the society, which was held at the Mayflower Hotel on February 20. We were privileged to hear a splendid address on "Types of Anemia and Their Treatment" by Dr. Cyrus C. Sturgis, Professor of Medicine of the University of Michigan and Director of the Simpson Memorial Institute for Research in Pernicious Anemia. The entertainment was furnished by The George Washington University combined glee clubs, and the praise given to the University singers by the members of the society and their guests was of the highest.

The second outstanding meeting of the year was the March meeting at which the program was presented by members of the Class of 1925 following their first reunion since graduation. Dr. Arnold McNitt, Dr. George L. Bowen, and Dr. E. King Morgan were the speakers, the latter two coming down from New York where they are engaged in practice. Present at the meeting were twenty-two of the forty-seven members of the Class of 1925. The success of this reunion was due largely to the efforts of Dr. Katherine A. Chipman, permanent secretary of the class. Prominence is given to this reunion in the hope that other classes may follow their example.

The April meeting of the society is to be devoted to the study of water balance in the treatment of medical and surgical diseases. Dr. E. C. Albritton, Professor of Physiology, is to present the laboratory aspects of the subject; Dr. P. A. McLendon, the medical part of the discussion; and Dr. W. W. Sager, the surgical side.

At the May meeting, the final one of the year, election of officers will take place.

Special attention is directed to the fact that the society will sponsor a reunion and dinner for all graduates of the School of Medicine at the annual meeting of the American Medical Association which is to be held in Atlantic City in June of this year. Dr. C. N. Chipman is chairman of a committee on arrangements.

W. RAYMOND THOMAS,
President

Engineer Alumni Association

At a recent meeting of the executive committee plans were made for the coming annual dinner meeting that will be held on the last Tuesday in April. Notices have been sent to all engineer graduates in Washington and vicinity and card notices will follow shortly before the date of the meeting. At this meeting the election of officers for the ensuing year will be in order. A large attendance is expected. The business session will be followed by motion pictures of engineering construction work which should be of interest to all. Long speeches are taboo.

To those engineers who may find it inconvenient to attend the annual meeting, notice is given now that the annual engineers' banquet, held under the auspices of the Engineer Council of the student body, will be held May 8. Remember, this is one of the student activities we are pledged to support, and it affords an excellent opportunity of seeing old friends and renewing acquaintances.

H. VELPEAU DARLING,
President

Library Science Alumni Association

A luncheon meeting held at Taft House Inn on Saturday, March 13, concluded two very successful years under the leadership of Lester A. Smith, now alumni secretary of the University. Guests were Director Alfred F. W. Schmidt, of the Division of Library Science, and Mrs. Schmidt; Miss Adelaide R. Hasse; Miss Elizabeth A. La-throp, honorary member; and officers of the student Library Science Club.

Officers of the association were elected as follows: Miss Sarah Ann Jones, president; Miss Patricia Hunt, vice-president; Miss Clara Egli, treasurer. Miss Fern Hyatt was re-elected secretary, and Miss Leila Fern has been appointed assistant secretary. Miss Frances M. Hall will continue as historian, Mrs. James A. Wilson as editor of News Notes, and Miss Anna M. Link as intermediary to effect coöperation between the Library Science Club and the alumni group.

The Library Science alumni are planning their second annual dinner to be held in New York City during the American Library Association conference in June. Alumni will be notified of arrangements, and all are urged to attend.

FERN HYATT,
Secretary

Kansas City Alumni Club

The Kansas City George Washington University Alumni Club has had a number of well-attended and reviving luncheons during the winter months. We are planning regular luncheons henceforth.

In view of the fact that the annual convention of the American Bar Association will be held in Kansas City, Missouri, September 27-October 1, 1937, we are pointing our activity and interest toward that event, because the predominant number of our alumni here are in the active practice of the law.

We extend a special invitation to our fellow alumni, dispersed throughout America, to come to our beautiful city and obtain the great benefits inherent in the American Bar Association meetings, which will be held in Kansas City's magnificent municipal auditorium.

With this occasion in mind I have designated the following members of the Kansas City, Missouri, Bar who are George Washington University Law alumni, as a special committee looking towards this outstanding event: Conger R. Smith, Burr S. Stottle, William E. Kemp, C. Earl Hovey, John W. Hudson, Henry S. Plagens, Albert F. Hillix, Perry W. Shrader, Charles W. Gerard, Dean Frazier, Edward L. Scheufler, and Don C. Little of Kansas City, Kansas.

In the meantime, we will gladly furnish any prospective delegates or visitors any information they may desire.

Best wishes from us to all the others.

EDWARD L. SCHEUFLEER,
President

San Francisco Alumni Club

Since the preceding issue of the ALUMNI REVIEW, The George Washington University Alumni Club of San Francisco held a luncheon meeting at the Plaza Hotel. This meeting was arranged as a celebration of George Washington's birthday, but since it is difficult to secure a representative attendance at a down-town luncheon on a national holiday, the meeting was held on February 18. It will hereafter be an annual custom to hold a luncheon meeting on George Washington's birthday, and we hope we have initiated a custom which will be adopted by all regional clubs of the alumni, since it seems a most appropriate occasion to have gatherings in honor of the first President who suggested the founding of a university at the seat of government.

At this meeting Mr. William A. Atkinson who had recently visited the University gave a résumé of the new buildings, the campus, and the plans for progress as outlined to him by President Marvin.

The next meeting is planned for April 30 in connection with the dinner sponsored by the General Alumni Association at Washington honoring ten years of service of Dr. Marvin as President of the University. If the Washington meeting is broadcast by national radio hook-up, we will enjoy that program.

Our secretary, Mr. Atkinson, obtained from the Alumni Secretary a list of the graduates in this territory which added about twenty-five names to our present list. Our alumni club has a problem peculiar to San Francisco. This State of California is about a thousand miles in length. We are ambitious to include in our group all alumni in the northern part of the state; modesty is not one of our virtues and the only reason we do not include China, Japan, and the Philippines is because we do not have a list of alumni in those places! Because our metropolitan area is separated by San Francisco Bay, it is difficult to secure a large attendance at our meetings. However, what we lack in numbers we make up in interest.

We plan to continue to make the meetings interesting, as they have been in the past. In order that meetings may not be overlooked, we propose to assign five or six names to each of a group of members and have each of those members assume the responsibility of contacting those on his list to remind them of the meetings. We are glad to have with us wives, husbands, sons, or daughters of a member, or any friend interested in hearing about George Washington University.

The Year in Athletics

By The Sports Reporter

BY IMPROVING upon performances of previous years, athletics at George Washington during the 1936-37 season continued to increase G.W.'s place in sportland's sun. As usual football dominated the sport program with an impressive record of seven wins, one loss, and one tie, in a tough schedule.

Football started out in the spring of 1936 with the reputation of having one of the weakest and greenest squads ever coached under the tutelage of "Possum" Jim Pixlee, but before the spring practice had ended, close observers were more than ordinarily interested in the prospects of George Washington to put a more than decent team on the field. Their interest was not without reason. Although five men had been lost by graduation, namely Tuffy Leemans, Ben Plotnicki, Henry Vonder Bruegge, Sydney Kolker, and Captain Harry Deming, last year's reserves and new men from the freshman team had developed enough to form a nucleus for a winning team.

Sophomores filled the breach in many places. Starting from end, we see Tippy Holt ousting Pete Yurwitz from a starting position. Tippy, one of the most promising flankmen seen around these parts for a long time, was a sure tackler, a fine pass receiver, and no slouch at blocking. He got into every game and shone most spectacularly in his pass receiving capacity, though he was right down under punts and a thorn in the side of the enemy when plays swung around his end. At the other end was Ray Hanken, All-District end, who finished his playing career in a blaze of glory. Transposed from a back to a winger, Ray took to his new position naturally, and under the able guidance of the new line coach, Barton Kock, became the most outstanding and most valuable man on the team. Already signed to a contract by the New York Giant Pro team, Ray was later chosen as the most valuable man on the G.W. team and presented with a cup by the O.D.K. honorary activities fraternity. Lloyd Berry also performed very creditably at end.

Another end, Bob Faris, a sophomore, came into prominence because of his offensive ability. Bob also shone in basketball. He played his best against Wake Forest when his great catch of a long pass in the waning moments of the contest enabled G.W. to score the clinching touchdown as the clock swiftly ticked off the last seconds. Leon Morris was another end, and though handicapped by an injury, he will be in fighting trim next year.

At the tackles at the beginning of the year were veteran Dale Prather and several sophomores whose names became household words soon after the season opened. They were Johnny Rebholz, Bob Canning, and several who alternated at guard and tackle, Hal Schiering, Stan Grbovaz, and Tim Stapleton. All new men but Prather, they put up a fine show and with guards Izzy Weinberg, Ted Cottingham, and Guy Renzaglia, and centers Armando Salttrelly and Al Haringer, will comprise next year's line.

Before the season opened, the backfield too, was called woefully weak by some who saw in the loss of Tuffy Leemans the utter downfall of football at George Washington. However, last year's holdovers and more sophomores astounded critics by their ability. Joe Kaufman, who didn't reach the heights expected last year, came through with a bang, and was the best triple-threat man in these parts. Joey kicked, passed, and ran his way to prominence in every game. It was his bullet-like pass to Jay Turner in the Wake Forest game that turned inevitable defeat into a glorious win. Jay Turner, Frank Merka, and Vic Sampson were the sophomores of the backfield, and they played like veterans. Turner, as mentioned, caught the pass that won the Wake Forest game, and he also caught the pass that put the ball in scoring position against West Virginia to practically win that game. Merka did the punting. His coffin-corner kicks against Arkansas perhaps turned the tide in that battle when the Buff and Blue won its first major victory. Sampson, the scatback of the team, was spectacular on the spread formation. All three will be greatly counted on next year.

Captain Frank Kavalier, George Jenkins, Herb Reeves, and Howard Tihila filled out the backfield. Kavalier was handicapped by injuries during the season, and consequently didn't play as much as he might have. Reeves played a great defensive game, and though a fullback, he gained more than his share of ground. Tihila played his usual type of game, as a plunging fullback, and was used to gain a few yards when needed for a first down. In this respect he performed ably. Jenkins was considered by the coaches to be the most valuable back on the team.

Among the notable victories were those over Arkansas, later champion of the Southwest Conference, Wake Forest, Elon, Emory-Henry, Catawba, and West Virginia. The contest with Mississippi was tied, and a hard game was lost to Rice by one touchdown, 12-6.

Five men graduated, namely, Captain Frank Kavalier, Herb Reeves, Ray Hanken, George Jenkins, and Dale Prather.

Following this splendid football year, basketball immediately came into the limelight with prospects for a good year, and the team didn't disappoint its followers. Seventeen victories with only four losses were registered.

The losses were at the hands of Long Island, which defeated the Colonials twice; Loyola, of Chicago; and Westminster, which G.W. had defeated once.

The varsity was headed by Captain Hal Kiesel, who also led the scoring for the season by hooping 156 points, barely nosing out Tom O'Brien who scored 154.

The most important victories were those scored over St. Johns of Brooklyn, Geneva, Nebraska, Villanova, Army, and West Virginia. The losses were suffered against teams which were nationally known and recognized as champions in their respective sections, and therefore they were easier to bear. Long Island has long been known as the class of the East, and though its consecutive win streak was broken at the beginning of the year by Stanford, it still was a power in Eastern basketball. They won over G.W. first at the Madison Square Garden, 37-26, but were given a run for their money in the game played at the Tech gym. Here they won by only four points, and they won then only by a fine exhibition of freezing the ball. The other two losses were both by the slimmest of margins. George Washington's birthday saw the Buff and Blue drop a close decision to Loyola, of Chicago, a team that had won the Olympic sectional tryouts for their section the year before. A clever, fast ball club, they centered their defense around a tall center, and he kept enough balls from going in to give his team the margin of victory. The other loss, to Westminster, was perhaps the result of overconfidence. Already victorious over the Westminster team, the Colonials went down in defeat by one point.

The boys who played their last games were Captain Kiesel, tricky little Milt Schonfeld, who supplied the color of the team, Ben Goldfaden, the third high scorer, Clarence Berg, and Walter Bakum.

Others who contributed to this most successful season were Tommy O'Brien, Sid Silkowitz, Bob Faris, Jack Butterworth, a regular forward in his sophomore year, Bruce Borum, and Dave Osborne.

In freshman sports, equal progress was made. The frosh footballers defeated the Naval Training School, Western Maryland Frosh, Carney Point Y.M.C.A., tied the powerful Temple Frosh, and lost only to the Naval Plebes. Outstanding for the Cubs were Billy Richardson, Art Nowaskey, Joe Zaleska, "Sully" Saeger and "Reds" Noonan.

The freshman basketball team won 17 out of 19 games in its regular schedule, but failed to duplicate the performances of last year's team in the A.A.U. tournament. The previous team won the tourney, but the best this year's outfit could do was to win two games before succumbing to the W.P.A. team.

The two teams which won over the frosh were the Maryland Cubs, and the Federal Bureau of Investigation team which won the A.A.U. tournament. The yearlings, however, defeated most of the local high schools in and around the District, as well as trimming the F.B.I. in a previous game.

Outstanding on the team were George Garber, Sid Karp, Art Nowaskey, Joe Gubersky, Meyer Aronson, Max Anteles, and Joe Headstream.

In the minor sports, rifle, the only activity complete at this time, gained distinction. Finishing high in the Middle Atlantic Rifle League, the sharpshooters went on to win the Carnegie Tech Invitation Tournament. The riflers, in the meet, placed ahead of Carnegie Tech, last year's National Riflemen Association Intercollegiate champions, Ohio State, Philadelphia Navy Yard, Marine Corps, and Slippery Rock Teachers College.

Later in the season, the riflers placed second in the nation-wide N.R.A. tournament, being headed only by Navy.

One of the most noteworthy victories during the season was scored over Georgetown in the first shoulder-to-shoulder match shot between the schools for 15 years.

Members of the team were Captain Tracy Mulligan, Jack Harlan, Dana Wallace, Jack Wetzel, and Bob Griggs.

The spring sports are just beginning to flourish, and prospects are not as bright as the highly successful fall and winter activities. The baseball team has already played three games, losing two to Ohio State, but winning from Long Island which was featured by the one hit pitching of Vinnie DeAngelis. Coach E. D. Morris' team, which last year was one of the best college teams in the country, was hurt no little when many of the boys failed to report this year. Among those who are not with George Washington now are Fred Price, stellar first baseman, performing in the minors; Burt Webb, now at Elon College; Steve Walker, Bob Woytych, Ronald Hope, and Andy Horne.

However, the present lineup is not to be underestimated. Captain "Lefty" Johnson, for the past two years the leading hitter, is now on first base, after playing the outfield last year; Vinnie DeAngelis, last year's mainstay in the pitcher's box, is ready to match pitches with the best as he did in 1936; and among the others are Bob Williams, Clarence Berg, Tim Stapleton, Joe Brennan, Bill Lanier, Ralph Zaslaska, and Guho Zenowitz.

The tennis team has yet to play a match. It boasts a lineup that is unpredictable and may surprise and win the majority of its matches. No outstanding player is among the many aspirants, but every man is nearly as good as the next one and the result is a well balanced team from No. 3 down. On the team are Morris Stolar, Bob Braisted, Don Surine, Harry Ceppos, Malcolm Mintz, Al Robins, Bob Faris, and Jack Butterworth.

Schedules in intramural spring sports in baseball, softball, golf, and tennis are just starting at this time.

As a group we appreciate the ALUMNI REVIEW and feel that it serves a need which has long been felt among the alumni at points distant from Washington.

WILLIAM S. GRAHAM,
President

Cleveland Alumni Club

President Cloyd H. Marvin will be the guest of the Cleveland Alumni Club at a luncheon meeting on Saturday, April 17.

He will be accompanied to Cleveland by the newly appointed alumni secretary of the University, Mr. Smith.

This next meeting will be our annual meeting, with election of officers.

The last meeting of the club was that held November 16 at Devon Hall as a dinner meeting. The speaker was Dr. Daniel P. Quiring, a graduate of Oberlin and a lecturer at Western Reserve University, who was with Dr. Crile on Dr. Crile's famous African expedition. Dr. Quiring told about various features of the expedition, including the country, the climate, the people, the customs, the animals, and the biological conclusions and results reached as a result of the expedition. The talk was illustrated by very interesting slides. Some 25 guests were present on this occasion.

HADLEY F. FREEMAN,
President

With the Alumni . . .

1871

■ DECEASED. Alexander F. Magruder, M.D. 71, lieutenant commander, Navy Medical Corps, retired; January 27, at his home in Washington. Dr. Magruder, who was eighty-seven years of age, was the oldest retired officer of the Navy Medical Corps, in point of age and in date of entry to the service. He was appointed immediately following his graduation in 1871 and served until November, 1896, when he was retired due to physical disability. During the Spanish-American War he was called back to active service. He was stationed in Washington at the Navy Yard, Naval Hospital, and Marine Barracks, and also served at the Asiatic Station and on the ships Saratoga, Dolphin, and Yantic.

1877

■ Theodore W. Noyes, A.M. 77, LL.B. 82, LL.M. 83, LL.D. 17, publisher of the Washington Evening Star, and senior member of the University's Board of Trustees, was named by the Society of Natives of the District of Columbia as the native Washingtonian who rendered the most distinguished civic and public service to the District during the year 1936. He was presented with an engrossed certificate, signed by the officers of the society, in token of the honor.

1880

■ DECEASED. Louis D. Carman, LL.B. 80, LL.M. 81; December 15, in New York City. Dr. Carman had served as medical examiner in the Pension Bureau for many years prior to his retirement in 1929.

■ DECEASED. James H. Mason, LL.B. 80, LL.M. 81; July 26, at Wolfboro, New Hampshire, of pneumonia. Prior to his retirement Mr. Mason was general manager of the Simplex Electric Company in Boston.

■ Thomas J. Johnstone, LL.B. 81, LL.M. 82, retired lawyer, makes his home at 51 Hamilton Place, New York City. Mr. Johnstone writes: "Was glad to see Howard Seely's report in the last issue of the Alumni Review, and the mention of Walter B. Grant and other friends of youth."

1883

■ The biography of the late William C. Borden, M.D. 83, Sc.D. 31, former dean of the University's School of Medicine, written by his son, Daniel L. Borden, M.D. (w.d.) 12, B.S. in Med. 16, A.M. 17, was published in Volume V of the Medical Annals of the District of Columbia for September-October, 1936. The biography was read before The George Washington University Medical Society on May 16, 1936, at the time Dr. Borden presented to the School of Medicine the gift of a lecture fund made by the Borden family as a memorial to Dean Borden.

1888

■ Cooper Curtice, M.D. 88, who retired in 1930 after years of important scientific work for the United States Bureau of Animal Industry, makes his home near Fairfax, Virginia.

Dr. Curtice was one of the founders of the Zoological Division of the Bureau of Animal Industry. Among his outstanding achievements were his pioneer work in the eradication of bovine tuberculosis, and his inauguration of tick eradication for the elimination of tick fever in cattle. His suggestions for sanitary means for raising turkeys are credited with reviving the turkey industry which had been slowly perishing. It was Dr. Curtice, too, who proposed the successful treatment for control of stomach-worms in sheep.

In 1933 the Veterinary Medical Association conferred upon Dr. Curtice a medal in recognition of his meritorious work.

■ Allan Davis, B.S. 90, M.S. 96, who retired as principal of Roosevelt High School on November 30, was guest of honor at a farewell banquet given by the Roosevelt Alumni Association at the Shoreham Hotel. Sharing honors with him on that occasion were two of his associates who served with him as founders of the old Business High School, predecessor of Roosevelt: Alfred A. Wheat, LL.B. 91, chief justice

THE late Clarence W. DeKnight, of the Law Class of 1891, who in his will named the Law School of the University as the residuary legatee of his estate. The University will benefit to the extent of $291,000.

of the Supreme Court of the District; and Luther H. Reichelderfer, M.D. 99, LL.D. 32, former president of the Board of Commissioners of the District. Both Justice Wheat and Dr. Reichelderfer are alumni trustees of the University.

In tribute to Mr. Davis the Evening Star of Washington on October 22 said editorially: "Literally hundreds of thousands of people are helped by such a career as the principal of Theodore Roosevelt High School has had. Not merely the pupils who have studied under him, but also the public at large in which they are merged have been advantaged by his devotion to his profession. He has taught the whole city, influenced the destiny of the entire community."

■ DECEASED. James T. Gibbs, LL.B. 90, LL.M. 91; January 28, at his home in Washington, after an illness of several weeks. Mr. Gibbs was well known in Washington where he had practiced law since 1910. Before entering private practice he was associated with the Treasury Department.

Mr. Gibbs' interest in Masonry led him to high honors in that field. He was potentate of Almas Temple in 1913-14 and grand master of Masons in 1927. He represented Almas Temple in the Imperial Council for nine terms. He also was a member of the Scottish Rite.

■ DECEASED. Clarence W. DeKnight, LL.B. 91, LL.M. 92, M.P.L. 96, prominent Washington attorney; November 22, at Garfield Hospital, after an attack of pneumonia. Mr. DeKnight represented many large firms and corporations before the executive departments of the Federal government, the Court of Claims, the United States Supreme Court, and the International Claims Commission.

At one time he was secretary to the late Senator Arthur P. Gorman of Maryland, and years ago had served as secretary to the Senate Committee on Naval Affairs. He once was secretary of the United States Armor Factory Board, appointed to investigate the price of armor plating. Later he held a similar position with the Puerto Rican Evacuation Commission. He also was a former counsel of Queen Liliuokalani, of Hawaii.

Mr. DeKnight was a member of the American Society of International Law, the American Law Institute, American Bar Association, Navy League of the United States, United States Chamber of Commerce, American Chamber of Commerce in France, International Chamber of Commerce, and the Aeronautic Association.

He served as a delegate to the third congress of the International Chamber of Commerce in Brussels in 1925, the fourth congress in Stockholm in 1927, the fifth congress in Amsterdam in 1929, and the sixth congress in Washington in 1931.

He was a member of the national council of the National Economy League and the national advisory council of the American Peace Society. Mr. DeKnight was widely known in Washington, New York and Newport social circles. He travelled a great deal and spent much time on the French Riviera.

The Hattie M. Strong Hall for Women

From basement (with storage room, modernly-equipped laundry, kitchenette, and piano practice rooms) to roof (with recreation room, solarium, and open-air play space), the comfort of residents has been the first thought in the planning of the Hall.

Reservations for rooms in Strong Hall for the academic year 1937-38 are now being made.
